Predicts Arabs And Jews Will Unite

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, former president of the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish Agency for Palestine, described in New York the United Nations Palestine Commission proposal for partition of Palestine as a "very good plan" and expressed the hope that it would not share the fate of other plans in the past.

Dr. Weizmann, at the invitation of Henry Morgenthau Jr., former U.S. Secretary of the Treasury and chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, will speak in various cities in support of the $170,000,000 campaign of the UJA for relief and rehabilitation overseas.

"The only way of getting the Arabs and Jews together is first to separate them and then to unite them," he declared. "If the Palestine report is put into effect soon the two can get together. It is to the interest of Jews and Arabs to come to terms; one cannot live without the other."

Dr. Weizmann quoted Nuri Pasha, former foreign minister of Iraq as saying the partition proposal was as fantastic as the Arabian Nights, and declared:

"It is equally fantastic to think that the Arabs can have a stable state with 700,000 Jews in it opposed to them."

The Jewish leader said that he didn't believe threats of a holy war in Palestine if the partition proposal is accepted were very serious and pointed out that "there have been threats of a holy war for twenty-five years."

Asked about the British proposal to withdraw from Palestine, Dr. Weizmann said that in that event it would be up to the United Nations [illegible] to keep order.

Dr. Weizmann hailed the United Jewish Appeal as the financial backbone for the agencies responsible for every phase of the development of the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

He predicted that close economic cooperation between Arabs and Jews would grow out of the divisions of the Holy Land into independent Jewish and Arab states, and said that "all parties are tired of the perpetual tension and friction and want a solution in which stable relations can be established."

Jewish Agency Is Confident; Plans For New Regime

Whatever attitude Britain may take, David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine told Hebrew newspaper men in Tel Aviv: "Judah will arise anew as an independent state and the Jews will return freely to their own land."

Mr. Ben-Gurion voiced the Jewish community's confidence in statehood arising from the United States and Soviet declarations in favor of it.

"We have progressed farther toward the realization of our dreams than we had done over many years," the Hebrew newspaper Haaretz said in a typical comment. It is difficult to see how the Soviet-United States front on the proposed partition of Palestine can be opposed, the newspaper added.

"Zionism has had the great privilege of bringing about agreement and unity, even if only on this problem, between the two greatest powers in the world," Mr. Ben-Gurion declared.

When the British evacuation of Palestine occurs, he said, Palestine's Jews will have "to constitute a kind of state before the final and orderly state machinery comes into being."

In those words Mr. Ben-Gurion confirmed unofficial reports, comments Clifton Daniel, in the New York Times, that the Jewish Agency and the Jewish National Council were preparing a "shadow administration" to take over in Palestine if the need arises. He also confirmed that the Jewish administration would "employ every government official, Jewish, Arab and British and any other who is qualified for his task and who will be [illegible] maintenance of security; and, second, prevention of possible chaos, and that means the maintenance of Government and other services if and when the British leave the country." On the security question he added: "While there is no ground for panic, any sense of false security would be criminal."

He stressed that the avoidance of chaos on Britain's departure depended much on the Palestine Government.

"We have the right," he said, "to ask that from now on the Govern-

Noted Lawyer, Diplomat, Worked For Public Interest

Abram I. Elkus of New York, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, died in his summer home at Red Bank, N.J., on October 15. He was eighty years old.

Surviving are his widow, the former Gertrude R. Hess of New York, with whom he celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in April, 1946, at their Red Bank home; two daughters, Mrs. Ethel Hadas of New York, and Mrs. Arthur J. White of Red Bank; a son, James H. Elkus of Pittsburgh; four sisters, Mrs. Addie Auerbach, Miss Sarah Elkus, Mrs. Essie Galston, and Miss Savilla Elkus, all of New York, and five grandchildren.

The funeral service was held in the chapel of Temple Emanu-El, Sixty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, New York.

Mr. Elkus was born in New York's East Side, the son of Isaac and Julia Elkus, on August 6, 1867. He was educated in the public schools, City College and Columbia University, and began the practice of law in 1888.

He joined the firm of James, Schnell & Elkus in 1896, and became head of the firm a few years later. Next he headed the firm of Elkus, Gleason & Proskauer, its successor. Long before this time Mr. Elkus had become a lawyer of repute, and had begun to devote a large part of his legal work to causes of public interest.

Mr. Elkus served as United States Ambassador to Turkey during the months which preceded America's entrance into the First World War, rendering distinguished service to his country. To New York at large, he was equally [illegible] Court of Appeals, on various legislative commissions; and as a member of an international commission charged with settling a dispute between Finland and Sweden.

Before his appointment as Ambassador by President Woodrow Wilson, upon the resignation of Henry Morgenthau Sr., Mr. Elkus had won a reputation as a special United States Attorney to prosecute fraud in bankruptcy cases. That was between 1908 and 1910. In that period he established the precedent that perjury in bankruptcy cases is punishable summarily as contempt of court.

In 1911 Mr. Elkus framed thirty-five bills dealing with child labor, working hours for women, protection from fire and similar problems. The measures he wrote for the New York State Factory Investigating Commission were used as models by other states.

His efforts took wide scope. Federal judges elected him to prosecute fraudulent bankrupts, and his tireless handling of that mission won him much renown. Meantime the Merchants Association elected him to promote legislation proper for the development of commercial interests, and he handled much litigation for that body.

The New York Legislature recognized the capacity of the man, already a factor in civic affairs, when it made him one of the State Board of Regents in 1911. During this service he did much for the cause of education and the maintenance of proper standards for admission to the professions.

In the same year he was made counsel to the New York State Factory Investigating Commission. That body, which was set up after the disastrous Triangle Shirt Waist factory fire, accomplished much valuable work, for Mr. Elkus served it as counsel for four years. The report he framed resulted in the passage of thirty-five laws improving working conditions, safety of factory premises, and other vital conditions of the wage-earner's life. As chairman of the Court House Condemnation Commission and member of the Heights of Buildings Commission he did further valuable work.

Mr. Elkus had not interested himself greatly in politics until Woodrow Wilson sought the Presidency. Then, a lifelong Democrat, he threw himself into the campaign. As chairman of the Tariff Exhibits Committee of the Democratic National Committee, he rendered Mr. Wilson valuable service.

In 1916—on July 18—Mr. Elkus was rewarded for his political services by his nomination for the Constantinople post, from which Mr.

Arabs Are Bitter, Belligerent; Ready To Stand-At-Arms

An apparently irresistible force is about to collide with a seemingly immovable object in Palestine. The force is Zionism and the object is Arab opposition to it.

Bitterness was the Arab reaction to the Soviet endorsement of partition. "Dictatorial, Communist Russia," read a headline in the Christian Arab newspaper, Falastin.

There is no Soviet diplomatic mission in Jerusalem, to be attacked by Arab extremists, as were the United States, Polish and Swedish consulates. Barbed wire was being strung around the United States consulate general.

Arab newspapers attacked Russia for joining "imperialist America" in approving the partition of Palestine. Arabs mustered their forces for a show-down fight. British officials moved to bar inciting reports, especially from Lebanon and Syria, from circulating in Palestine.

The tension was so high in Jerusalem that when a soldier accidentally discharged a gun, sirens screamed for five minutes and the streets emptied.

More than 100 shieks of the Beersheba district voted to form "national guards to defend Palestine." They telegraphed the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem: "We are with you in defense of our country."

An awareness of the imminence of Jewish statehood was what drove the Arab League Council to its decision that the Arab states should send precautionary military forces to Palestine's borders. Arab statesmen foresaw the possibility that [illegible] might [illegible] state [illegible] country should take prompt action.

There are some Arabs who privately concede that in any case the first round of the fighting will probably go to the Jews. Others pessimistically predict an initial life of ten years for a Jewish commonwealth before it can be subdued by Arab military might.

Although slow and deliberate, the Arabs have, nevertheless, reached a new peak of determination. While Palestine Arabs do not seem to match the belligerency of their leaders, there are beginning to be stirrings of concern in the country. Emergency meetings to discuss defense measures to protest against the proposal of the United Nations Special Committee of Inquiry on Palestine and to form political committees were held in several large Arab towns and cities.

The duration and effectiveness of Arab resistance inside Palestine will depend partly upon help from the outside. British and American military experts in the Middle East frankly doubt the ability of the Arab states to mount and sustain a military operation of the size and complexity required. Arab statesmen themselves say that they do not intend to go to war with Britain and the Zionists believe that the Arab states are even less prepared to engage an international armed force in Palestine.

Even if infiltration into Palestine of Arab men and arms from neighboring states is three times what it was during the 1936-39 revolt, Zionist security officers profess that they will not be alarmed.

On the Arab side, however, far-seeing men such as Azzam Pasha do not fret over the possibility of initial Jewish victories. They are convinced that the mass and latent power of the Arabs is such that in the long run the Zionist Republic will be overwhelmed.

While the Jews in Palestine may make their state at least temporarily secure, Jews in Arab countries, out of reach of international protection, may suffer politically or even physically, reports Clifton Daniel, in the New York Times.

Palestine's Jews show a remarkable degree of self-confidence for a people numbering only some 600,000 and living without natural fortifications on a political island in a hostile Arab sea. At the same time they are careful and cautious.

"We are not living in a fool's paradise," says one of the men responsible for Jewish security. "We know that there are rifles available and that there are people who can use them. But we don't think they (the Arabs) are in a position to wipe us out."

As usual, Palestine Jews are one or two steps ahead of the Arabs

Shrine Dedicated As Memorial To Europe's Jews

A tiny plot of land in Riverside Drive, New York, off Eighty-fourth Street and overlooking the Hudson River, was dedicated as the site of a memorial in tribute to six million Jewish men, women and children killed under Nazi rule.

The memorial will bear special honor for the 40,000 defenders of the Warsaw ghetto who were killed by German guns, tanks and airplanes during April and May of 1943. The memorial will be the work of Jo Davidson, the sculptor, who is preparing scale models in his studio in Paris. The project will cost a quarter of a million dollars. It will be fifty feet high and fifty feet wide; and will be erected on land donated by New York City.

Fifteen thousand persons, headed by Mayor O'Dwyer, Senator Irving M. Ives, city officials, and foreign diplomats, stood silent as a scroll, illuminated by Arthur Szyk, internationally famous artist, describing the defense of Warsaw, in Hebrew and English; and two bronze boxes containing soil from concentration camps in Czechoslovakia, were placed beneath the cornerstone.

Bergson Group Still Militant; Opposes Partition

"The Irgun Zvai Leumi will continue to fight for the liberation of all Palestine, including Trans-Jordan," if the plan for partition of the Holy Land is adopted by the United Nations General Assembly, Peter H. Bergson of the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation declared at Lake Success, N.Y.

The committee, like the Irgun, contends that all of Palestine should be placed under a Hebrew Republic, Mr. Bergson said. The committee "challenges the right of the Jewish Agency for Palestine to have made public declarations renouncing the Hebrew national claim to some 85 per cent of the territory of Palestine," he declared.

"Nothing will come of this partition plan, because nothing can come of it," Mr. Bergson continued. "It doesn't make sense."

He charged that the British "have succeeded in pressing their plan for the dismemberment of Palestine under the respectable title of partition and have even succeeded in convincing everybody that they are opposed to it."

Mr. Bergson censured the British Government for its "chaotic statements about sudden withdrawal from Palestine."

Shuberts, Once Ticket-Sellers, Set Up Huge Foundation To Honor Brother's Memory

By M. J. Rocusin, In The New York Herald Tribune

Lee and Jacob J. Shubert, of New York, directing heads of the far-flung Shubert theatrical enterprises, have established a non-profit foundation to handle current and contemplated philanthropic activities.

The organization is named the Sam S. Shubert Foundation Inc., in honor of an older brother who lost his life in a train wreck in 1906. It was incorporated under the laws of Delaware on June 29, 1945, and it was indicated that the foundation already had made substantial contributions to Catholic, Jewish and other denominational and non-sectarian organizations and individuals.

The foundation at present is said to possess $500,000 and it was indicated in reliable quarters that the bulk of the Shubert fortune may eventually go into the fund. The Shubert properties are estimated at present to be worth in excess of $20,000,000.

The incorporation was handled by William Klein and Milton R. Weir, of 1440 Broadway, long attorneys for the Shuberts, who would offer no comment on the subject.

The incorporation papers filed at Dover, Del., set forth as the purposes of the organization: "To conduct and carry on the work of the foundation, not for profit, but exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes of the foundation."

The board of directors listed consists of Lee Shubert, John J. Shubert, Dora Shubert Wolf and William Klein.

John J. Shubert is a son of Jacob J. Shubert, and is assistant general manager of the Shubert interests. Dora Shubert Wolf is a sister of the two Shubert brothers and is a director in the Shubert enterprises.

The officers of the foundation are Jacob J. Shubert, president and treasurer; Lee Shubert, vice-president; John J. Shubert, assistant treasurer; Dora Shubert Wolf, secretary; John F. Waters, controller and treasurer of the Shubert interests, assistant secretary, and Milton R. Weir, assistant secretary.

The incorporation papers also provide opportunity for outsiders who want to participate in the foundation's activities to join it as members, any resident or citizen of the United States being eligible. The memberships, however, are to be limited to not less than three nor more than seven to be chosen by unanimous vote of the directors. The membership at the present time, it was understood, includes Lawrence Shubert Lawrence and Milton Shubert, nephews; Sylvia Wolf, daughter of Doris Shubert Wolf, and other relatives.

Headquarters of the foundation is given as 223 West Forty-fourth Street, in the Shubert Theater building, where Lee Shubert maintains his offices.

The Shubert brothers, it was explained, were deeply attached to their brother, Sam, who could never permit a panhandler to pass without a contribution. Immediately after his death, Lee and J. J., as Jacob J. Shubert prefers to be known, named many of their theaters after their brother and today all the theaters under their sway have photographs of the brother hung in the lobbies. They decided upon the foundation, as a tribute to his memory.

The Shubert brothers began their theatrical career as program boys and ticket-sellers in the theaters of Syracuse, N.Y., and while still in their teens gained control of the four legitimate theaters of the city.

They began their career in New York with the leasing of the Herald Square Theater in 1900. By 1904 they had five theaters in New York under their control and in the next six years acquired forty theaters throughout the United States, of which fifteen had been built by themselves. In a few more years they were supplying attractions for 1,000 theaters throughout the country and had successfully bucked the Klaw & Erlander syndicate, which virtually had had a monopoly of the stages.

At the peak of their rise, properties under their control were valued at $400,000,000. The depression, however, brought them to receivership in 1931, but in 1933 they bought the assets of their enterprises for $400,000. These assets were conservatively valued at more than $20,000,000.

The Shuberts today own, lease or control about half of the forty legitimate theaters in the city and about fifteen theaters in principal cities of the country. They also have a half-interest in the United Booking Office, through which it is virtually necessary for independent producers to book their shows if they want desirable theaters for road tours.

Lee is seventy-two and has never married. J. J. is sixty-seven and was divorced in 1918. The brothers own all their property jointly and have joint banking accounts. No accurate statement on their wealth has ever been available. Mr. Klein, their attorney, once said, however, "Neither of the Messrs. Shubert will ever be buried in potter's field."

Poet Was Famous Wit

Samuel Hoffenstein, fifty-seven, poet and screen writer, died at Los Angeles, Calif., following a heart attack.

His screen work included "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde", "Desire", "The Great Waltz", "Love Me Tonight" and "Miracle Man."

Samuel Hoffenstein had two separate careers and a lifetime avocation that complemented both. As a poet and humorist in New York during the 1920s his bitter verses reflected much of the frenetic decade and won wide acclaim with the publication of "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing" in 1928.

Then he all but abandoned poetry for a successful career as a Hollywood scenarist, protesting that poetry did not pay off in royalty checks. But throughout both careers he enjoyed a reputation as a conversationalist — a dazzling talker who delighted his listeners with searing observations which he sugar-coated under astonishing word combinations.

His poetry was of the genre of light verse. While critics found in [illegible] originality in the best traditions of true poetry.

Mr. Hoffenstein was born in Lithuania and came to the United States at the age of four years with his parents, Josiah Mayer and Taube Gita Kahn Hoffenstein. He attended the public schools of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and was graduated from Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., in 1911. He became principal of a Wilkes-Barre public school soon after graduation, but gave up a teaching career to work as a reporter on the Wilkes-Barre "Times-Leader."

In 1912, he became a reporter on "The Sun", in New York, and later a special writer, and finally a dramatic critic during 1914 and 1915, when he wrote a department called "The Playgoer." From 1916 to 1927 he was press agent for the theatrical producer, Al Woods, and during these years garnered a rich store of legend which later he wove into his humorous writings.

During part of this period, 1923-1925, Mr. Hoffenstein contributed a column called "The Dome" to the New York Tribune. He was a frequent contributor of verse to F. P. A.'s "The Conning Tower."

During the last seventeen years while writing scripts for motion pictures, Mr. Hoffenstein published no poetry. But last June Doubleday announced that a new collection of his verse would appear this fall under the title "Pencil in the Air". Besides "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing", his earlier works included "Life Sings a Song", 1918; and "Years In, You're Out", 1930.

Mr. Hoffenstein was divorced in 1938 by the former Edith Morgan, whom he married in 1927.

Actors Ask U. S. Support Of Majority Report On Palestine

The following statement appeared as a letter to the New York Times:

For some time now the situation of the Jewish Displaced Persons in Europe and the relationship of the Jewish people to Palestine has been high on the agenda of world opinion.

After all these years, notwithstanding the repeated requests and recommendations for Jewish immigration into Palestine and notwithstanding the present-day plight of European Jewry, the civilized world is still compelled to gaze upon such degrading scenes as the recent forced deportation of the Exodus refugees.

The United Nations, as is proper, is now engaged in an earnest effort to find a solution to this problem. The Special Committee on Palestine which it created last spring has rendered a majority report which calls for the immigration of 150,000 Jews into Palestine within the next two-year period and the partitioning of Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states, with an economic union between the states.

Although none of the big powers was directly represented in the Special Committee on Palestine, we believe that the Palestine problem is one issue within the United Nations upon which the big powers can most readily reach agreement. We in Hollywood who have given some study to this problem are persuaded that our Government, which has long-standing commitments in this matter, should take the initiative in pressing for the adoption and implementation of this majority report.

We must caution, however, that the boundaries of the proposed Jewish state, as recommended by the Majority Report, represent in our opinion the absolute minimum geographical area necessary for the absorption of the forthcoming Jewish immigration into Palestine and the proper development of the Jewish National Home. Any attempts to further whittle down this area, as has already been done by the lopping off of Transjordania from Palestine, should be strongly resisted.

The future hope of the Middle East lies in close cooperation and friendship between the Jewish and Arab peoples, and we look forward to the realization of that ideal. But we do not visualize how any such amicable relations can be established under a Mufti-dominated anti-Jewish Arab leadership such as exists today.

We do not take seriously the threats of the present Arab leaders of a declaration of a Holy War against the Jewish people. An analysis of the military situation in the Middle East will prove that there is no danger of any sustained and large-scale Arab attacks upon public order in Palestine.

The Jewish Agency for Palestine, as the spokesman of the Jewish people, should be invited not only to present its case before the United Nations but should be allowed to participate on an equal basis with the Arab states in all deliberations relating to the future of Palestine.

We view with deep concern the recent statement of the British Colonial Secretary, Mr. Arthur Creech-Jones, for its failure to endorse the Majority Report of the United Nations Palestine Committee. Indeed, the statement of the Colonial Secretary amounted virtually to a rejection of that report. We earnestly hope and trust that this does not represent the final position of the British Government and that Britain will not set herself up as the moral judge of any United Nations decision.

Our Government must take a positive and vigorous position during the deliberations of this problem to the end that the unfortunate and hapless remnant of a great people find at long last happiness in the land of their choice and the society of nations again reaffirm the principles of equality and justice for all.

Student Barred For Beating Jew

As a result of the attack made last May on a Jewish resident at Iowa City, Iowa, a former State University of Iowa student, who dropped out of school last August, has been barred from re-entering the university.

C. Woody Thompson, dean of student affairs, refused to identify the former student who has been allowed thirty days in which to appeal from the decision to the faculty committee on discipline.

The beating of Elihu Stamm Cooper, teacher in a Hebrew school, was not made public until last summer. Cooper was attacked by two men, who had been making disparaging remarks about Jews in an Iowa City restaurant.

The identification of the two men who attacked Cooper was determined only recently by an agent for the Iowa State Bureau of Criminal Investigation, Dean Thompson said.

The State Bureau was called into the investigation on the theory that the attack was the outgrowth of anti-Semitic feelings at the State University. After the investigation R. W. Nebergall, head of the State Bureau, said that he was satisfied that "this was just a tempest in a teapot."

The investigation was officially closed with no action taken against the attackers. Mr. Cooper had earlier refused to file charges against the two men. Only one of the men involved was a university student.

Christian Urges True Story Of Jew

No story of a people has for centuries been so completely "misinterpreted and so completely misread" as has the story of the Jewish people, the Rev. Karl M. Chworowsky said in his sermon at the Flatbush Unitarian Church of Brooklyn, 1901 Beverly Road, Brooklyn, N.Y.

"We can start today in our churches and church-schools to teach Jewish history as it is, not as Christian theologians have distorted it," he said. "We can begin now to teach that Jewish history is older, much older than we believed and that it is richer, much richer than we have been told, and that Jews are people like other people. . . ."

"Not until we have emptied our minds of the traditional 'fiction about the Jew' and substituted therefor the 'true story of the Jew' will the necessary understanding and appreciation of Jewish genius and Jewish history be achieved."

Bulgarians Did Not Give Up A Single Jew

Of all the occupied countries, Bulgaria is the only one that can boast of not having sacrificed a single Jewish victim to the Nazi Jew-baiters, says a writer in the London Jewish Chronicle. One of the first Nazi measures following the arrival of their Army was to demand the restriction of Jewish rights and the transportation of the Jewish population to the port of Lom, on the Danube. The Government subserviently issued a law abolishing Jewish rights. In my capacity as the Jewish Chronicle representative, I requested an audience of the late King Boris, and was immediately received. To my categorical questions, the King replied equally categorically, and sincerely. One of his most significant statements was (I record it verbatim): "My dear M. Pipanov, convey my respects to The Jewish Chronicle. I know your father well. He rendered innumerable and signal services to Bulgaria during the first world war. I also had the honour of knowing your late grandfather, the Chief Rabbi. I tell you quite frankly that I shall not permit a single hair of the head of a Jew to be harmed. There are restrictions and 'laws' which I am forced to accept, but I do so only for the good of the Jewish people, with the aim, by means of these laws, of protecting them from the extermination demanded by the Germans."

And, in fact, if the Jewish population has been protected, if it has suffered but not been slaughtered, it is thanks to the friendship shown by the Bulgarian people. The Church, the Army, the progressive elements of the nation as a whole —all helped to save the Jews from annihilation.

At first, the Jews of Sofia were collected in certain provincial towns, and forced to wear "Jewish" armlets, and the men were mobilized in labour camps. But not a single Jew was surrendered to the Germans. It is true that some Bulgarian officials used the opportunity to seize Jewish property, and that anti-Jewish malcontents sought to arouse anti-Semitism. But it is true also that the Bulgarian people, from peasant to intellectual, all offered help in some measure. The peasants gave asylum to Jewish fugitives, and many Bulgarians saved Jewish property by pretending to acquire it.

In June, 1944, M. Bagrianov came to power, and the yellow armlet was abolished. The revolution of September, 1944, brought the abolition of all anti-Jewish restrictions and the restoration of Jewish rights. Since then, successive Governments have established Jewish equality on all counts.

To-day, there are two Jewish deputies in the National Assembly: Dr. Nissim Mevorah, a Jewish Professor of the University of Sofia, has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; and Jews are fully active in other spheres of public life. Jewish property has been restored intact; and 80 million leva has been voted to aid Jewish communal organizations. The Jews are truly grateful to the Bulgarian people who, by their decisive actions against the pro-Nazi policy of Filov and Gabrovsky, have wiped away a stain on the nation's honour.

"THE MUSKRAT" after a painting by Audrey McNaughton

THE EDITOR
—a Conservationist

Editors of rural publications can render a valuable public service by bringing to the attention of their readers the need for, and latest developments in, conservation.

With its under-water entrance, the home of the muskrat shelters him from most of his enemies—but not from the trapline. Closed seasons have been declared by each province to prevent over-trapping. Intelligent, far-sighted trappers realize the importance of observing these laws in order that a rich harvest of muskrat fur, the raw material of 'Hudson Bay Seal', may be reaped year after year.

• "The closing of the fall season for muskrat gave the animals the protection of a shortened open season, and at the same time increased the value of the annual catch by eliminating unprime fall skins."

• An excerpt from—CONSERVATION and CANADA'S FUR-BEARING ANIMALS by Stuart C. Downing, one in a series of pamphlets published by The Carling Conservation Club.

CLASS IN COOKERY

three pounds sweet potatoes
four large apples
one-half cup cold water
ten prunes, washed and pitted
one cup brown sugar

Slice the potatoes one inch thick, and place around in a circle in a flat dish (a deep frying pan or casserole is suitable). Slice the apples like orange slices, and place on top of potatoes. Put the prunes in the empty spaces. Sprinkle the brown sugar over this, and add the cold water. Stew on top of stove until the potatoes are medium done. Then bake in oven at 350 degrees, until golden brown.

Mrs. J. Hurvitz,
38 Nina Avenue, Toronto.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE CAKE

Mix three squares of melted chocolate with one-quarter cup boiling water, until well-blended and thick. Sift together: two cups of sifted cake flour, one teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon salt, and one and one-quarter cups sugar. Add one-third cup shortening, and one cup rich sour cream. Beat for two minutes, until batter is smooth and glossy. Then add cooled chocolate mixture, two unbeaten eggs, and one teaspoon vanilla, and beat for two more minutes. Pour into two lightly-greased and floured eight-inch layer-cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven, of 350 degrees, for thirty-five or forty minutes.

Creamy Chocolate Frosting

Soften one three-ounce package of cream cheese by adding three tablespoons of milk, one tablespoonful at a time. Add gradually two and one-half cups of sifted confectionery sugar, and blend well. Add two squares of melted bitter chocolate, and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Beat until smooth. Icing cake on top, sides, and between layers.

1324 St. Viateur Street West, Montreal.

Urge Volunteers For Palestine Duty

A rally of the Kings County, N.Y., Council of the Jewish War Veterans, held on the steps of Borough Hall in Brooklyn, passed a resolution to be sent to President Truman pledging it would stand behind any effort made to enroll an army of volunteers in America to police Palestine.

The resolution first asked President Truman to support the report of the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine recommending the division of Palestine into an Arab and a Jewish state, then said: "We stand behind our government in any proposal to raise an army in this country, composed of veterans of all faiths, creeds and colors, to be sent to Palestine as a police force pending the establishment of a Jewish state and until the U.N. will be ready to supply such a force or it is no longer needed."

About 1,000 persons attended the rally, most of them standing in doorways because of the rain. Speakers included Albert D. Schanzer, national chairman of the veterans' committee of the Zionist Organization of America; Abraham J. Cross, county commander of the Jewish veterans, and Archie H. Greenberg, Jewish War Veterans delegate to the U.N.

SHRINE

Ambassador, and Juraj Slavik, Czechoslovak Ambassador to the United States, presented the highest military decorations of their nations "to the unknown soldier of Warsaw." Mayor O'Dwyer received the awards.

Henri Bonnet presented the Palms de Bronze, a bronze plaque bearing the simple inscription, "Hommage de la France", on behalf of his government, and read a message from President Vincent Auriol of France. In the message, President Auriol said the sacrifice of the 40,000 men and women of the ghetto army in April and May of 1943 in their bitter forty-day battle against the Germans was "all the more noble since it appeared hopeless." The fight "constituted an act of faith for all those who, in the underground, resisted the Nazi invader," he said.

The Czechoslovak War Cross was presented by M. Slavik, on behalf of President Edouard Benes, and the Order of Valor, by M. Kosanovic.

Besides the medal, Ambassador Slavik also brought the bronze boxes filled with earth from the Nazi concentration camps in Sered and Terezin.

The audience, including 100 survivors of the Buchenwald and Dachau concentration camps, heard the speakers excoriate the Nazi rulers for their murders.

A [illegible], [illegible] chaplain, Rabbi William Rosenblum, president of the Synagogue Council of America, gave the invocation. It gave way to a sharper downpour when Cantor Mihal Kunevitsky recited the Kaddish and chanted El Moleh Rachamim — the Hebrew prayers for the dead. Not a few cried.

The cornerstone was set in place while an honor guard of Jewish war veterans stood at attention and taps were sounded.

The sun broke through the mist when Mayor O'Dwyer began wielding the trowel of cement for the cornerstone that bore the inscription: "This Is the Site for the American Memorial to the Heroes of the Warsaw Ghetto Battle, April-May, 1943, and to the 6,000,000 Jews of Europe Martyred in the Cause of Human Liberty."

The memorial, he asserted, will be an expression of sorrow of Americans "for the victims of the greatest tragedy in history." Permanent peace can be achieved, he maintained, only "when all peoples learn to live peacefully together as we do in our great United States."

Among the speakers were: Vasili Dendramis, Greek Ambassador to the United States; Johnkheer Reuchlin, Minister Plenipotentiary of the Netherlands; Charles Halaert, Belgian Consul General; Senator Irving M. Ives and Robert F. Wagner Jr., City Housing Commissioner, who read a message from his father, Senator Robert F. Wagner.

Also, Adolph R. Lerner, publisher, who conceived the idea of the memorial; Dr. Joseph Thon, president of the National Organization of Polish Jews; Professor James H. Sheldon, chairman of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, and Samuel L. Wohl, president of the American Council of Warsaw Jews. The Right Rev. Francis W. Walsh brought greetings from Francis Cardinal Spellman, and the Right Rev. S. Harrington Littell, retired Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Honolulu, represented the Protestant faiths.

Co-chairmen of the event were Hugo E. Rogers, Borough President of Manhattan, and Alexander P. Chopin.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Have you picked the next goal in your career?

This may be a job higher up. It may be a broadened field of operation. Or it may be a plan for [illegible]. Whatever it is, the important thing is to choose some goal and work consciously towards it.

But before you start, make sure that you are distinguishing properly between daydreams and practical objectives. Then work out a definite plan of operation, utilizing all the information you can get on the subject.

It is helpful, too, to picture yourself as having already attained your goal. This has the effect of making you willing to assume more responsibility and to think progressively.

Even people who are content with their present status often yearn for a "better deal". But they get nowhere because they do not work towards a goal. If they did, they would soon achieve the success they want.

ment assist every section of the population and every responsible body that wishes to ensure peace and order and the maintenance of normal conditions in this task; otherwise the evacuation, when it comes, will be accompanied by anger and revenge instead of being carried out in a manner befitting a public body."

Describing what the Jews should do to prepare for the transfer of power, he said that existing departments and services should be expanded to governmental stature, that the economic unity of the country as laid down by the United Nations committee should be provided for Arabs well as for Jews. Unless men and materials are mobilized now, Mr. Ben-Gurion said, the Jews may be too late and there will be danger of upheaval.

A vast propaganda campaign has been begun to inform the Arabs of the Zionists' intentions and to invite their peaceful cooperation. Several thousand copies of recent resolutions by the elected assembly of Palestine's Jews, a shadow legislature, have been printed in Arabic and will be distributed to Arabs in Palestine and in neighboring countries. English copies were also printed for circulation abroad.

These resolutions, while declaring the Jews' intention to persevere in their political aims, expressed the hope that Jews and Arabs would not be provoked into bloodshed and could cooperate as free and equal allies for the peace and progress of the Middle East. They also proposed to the United Nations that a provisional Jewish Government be established immediately following any United Nations decision for a Jewish state to take over from the British Administration and to rule with the assistance and supervision of the United Nations.

By the time the Jewish state envisaged by Mr. Ben-Gurion is created 30,000 Jews may be waiting to enter Palestine. The largest shipment of immigrants in Palestine's history is scheduled to leave Black Sea ports shortly. Several other immigrant ships are being prepared by Haganah.

Zionist quarters said that two ships in the Black Sea, the former American Pan York and Pan Crescent, had accommodations for more than 13,000. The largest previous single shipment of refugees was 4,500 in the Exodus 1947, who subsequently were deported to Germany.

How many Rumanian, Bulgarian and Hungarian Jews can be loaded on the Pan York and Pan Crescent depends on how many can reach the embarkation ports and how much interference there may be from Balkan Governments under British diplomatic pressure.

Nearly 18,000 immigrants are in Cyprus detention camps. Their recent capacity was only 20,000 and the British are said to be enlarging them to avoid deporting more refugees to Europe.

Zionist authorities have no idea what the legal status of the Cyprus refugees will be when Britain relinquishes control of Palestine but they are confident that these and thousands more will promptly come to Palestine.

ARABS ARE BITTER

in their planning. Whereas the Arabs have not yet perfected their military defense against Zionism, the Jews are already putting their secret national militia, the Haganah, on an army basis and have gone ahead to plan a pro-tem administration to assume the functions of government when the moment arrives.

Bartley C. Crum, a former American member of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine, urged recognition of Haganah as the official army of any Jewish state created through partition.

In accepting the chairmanship of the National Council of the recently organized Americans for Haganah, Mr. Crum said:

"Haganah has proved itself through the years to be a strong disciplined people's army, prepared and able to maintain order and fulfill the requirements of building a Jewish state. Its present underground status forced by British non-recognition must be revised for Haganah is urgently needed now as an openly functioning defense army to help enforce any partition decision arrived at by the United Nations and to maintain order in the interim period."

Jewish community councils in the main cities of Palestine began a public enrollment of all Jews 15 to 50 years of age for the underground Haganah, as a countermove to alleged Arab troop movements on the Holy Land's borders.

Huge posters called on men and women "who have not registered for their civil duties to do so between Oct. 12 and Oct. 30." The measure represented the first open recruiting for Haganah since 1936.

An invitation from David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, to the two Jewish terrorist forces to disband and join in defense of the Palestine Jewish community against Arab military threats was published in the Hebrew press.

Haganah officers are confident that in case of a serious Arab threat, the underground forces could be united again for common defense. A permanent reconciliation is doubtful, however, because of strong opposition by the Irgun and Stern groups to the partition of Palestine, which Haganah's political leaders have accepted. Both the Irgun and Stern groups demand a Jewish state in all of Palestine and Trans-Jordan and repeatedly have declared that they would oppose, although not fight, any Jewish government that accepted less.

Under pressure from Haganah and the British, the terrorist forces have been remarkably quiet since early August. Their only major operations have been the bombing of the Haifa district police headquarters, in which ten persons were slain, and the armored car robbery in Tel Aviv in which $180,000 was stolen and four British policemen killed.

One of the men detained after the Tel Aviv robbery escaped from the Latrun detention camp in a bathing suit, having cut his way through barbed wire.

The Jihad (Holy War) Arab extremist underground organization, exploded its first pamphlet bomb. The pamphlets admitted Jihad's responsibility in the recent bombings of the Swedish, Polish and United States consulates.

"Let Western imperialistic countries who wish to get rid of their Jews realise the Arabs' determination to use force to protect themselves," the pamphlets said. "America is in a position to give lands of its own to the Jews."

Arab Communists pledged full support to the Arab League and the Palestine Arab Higher Committee.

An appeal to all Arab youth in Jaffa, Palestine's second seaport, to register immediately for "military duty" in defense of their "motherland" was made in posters distributed throughout Jaffa. The appeal was signed by Mohammed Nimr Hawari, a lawyer, who is joint "commander in chief" of the Palestine Arab military organizations Nejada and Futuwa.

Izzeden Shawa Bey, head of the Palestine Arab political mission in Britain, now in New York, said that the Arabs in Palestine were prepared for all eventualities, including military. "They do not intend to attack anyone, least of all the Jews," he said, "unless they are challenged, in which event not only the Arabs in Palestine but those outside, from Morocco to the Persian Gulf, will accept the challenge, no matter how costly this may prove to be."

Sheik Mustafa Mumen, delegate to the Moslem Brotherhood, said that the group had a membership of five to six millions. In Egypt alone, he said, there are 1,000,000 subscribing members. He estimated that there were 3,000 in Palestine and more than 100,000, including armed volunteers, in Syria.

The Sheik said that 10,000 brotherhood volunteers had reached the Palestine border in Egypt and were encamped at El-Arish. Four thousand have reached the border in Syria, he added.

NOTED LAWYER

Morgenthau had resigned. He left for the Near East the next month.

The massacres of Armenians were over before he arrived, and one of his first duties was to make representations to the Turkish Government concerning starving refugees of that race and also of Syrians caught in the maelstrom of war. There were many naturalized Americans in inaccessible territory to add to the new diplomat's difficulties.

The severance of German-American relations made communications difficult, and it was several weeks before Mr. Elkus got a dispatch through to the State Department reporting that Turkey was ready to aid in getting American refugees out of Asia Minor.

In the midst of this work the Ambassador was stricken with spotted typhus. He had been seriously ill in April, 1917, when the United States declared war against Germany and ordered its embassies to withdraw, from Constantinople and other capitals of Germany's allies. Mr. Elkus was not pronounced out of danger at Constantinople until May 1. Even then he was in no condition to travel and he was permitted to remain there until May 31.

The Ambassador journeyed home, obtaining safe conduct through Austria to Switzerland. In Vienna his bag, containing valuable documents and his passports, was stolen. From Switzerland he went to France, thence to England.

While Mr. Elkus was travelling in Europe, anti-German demonstrations broke out in various agricultural districts of Austro-Hungary. German newspapers charged him with trying to arrange a separate peace and promising a loan to Austria. This would have served to split the Central Powers and force Turkey and Bulgaria, allies of Germany, to quit the war.

Upon his arrival in the U.S., on July 4, 1917, Mr. Elkus denied these allegations and also refuted stories of the ill-treatment of Jews in Turkey.

Mr. Elkus held the nominal title of Ambassador to Turkey until 1919, although, after his departure, this nation had no accredited diplomat in Constantinople until 1927.

In 1920, Mr. Elkus was named by President Wilson to an international commission to report on the merits of the Aaland Islands dispute between Finland and Sweden. He and former President Colander of Switzerland and Baron Beyens of Belgium, after an inquiry, recommended that the islands remain under Finnish sovereignty.

In 1918 and 1919 Mr. Elkus, who had been a member of the New York State Board of Regents from 1911, was appointed by Gov. Alfred E. Smith to serve as chairman of the Reconstruction Commission charged with drawing up plans for the reorganization of the State Government. Mr. Elkus was a vigorous supporter of Governor Smith during his unsuccessful Presidential campaign of 1928.

In 1919 he was appointed a member of the New York State Court of Appeals, serving for one year, until his Aaland Island appointment. In 1925 he became a member of the law firm of Gleason, McLanahan, Merritt & Ingraham.

Mr. Elkus had been a director of the Anglo-South American Trust Company and the Shaw-Knox Company of Pittsburgh. He was a trustee and honorary president of the Baron de Hirsch fund, president of the Jewish Technical School for Girls and a member of New York bar associations.

France made him a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor. For his services to the British refugees in Turkey the Grand Cross of the British Empire was conferred on him.

"After thirty years of occupation, you cannot just announce that you are pulling out, without saying when, or to whom authority will be turned over," he continued. "If the British will announce a date for orderly withdrawal of their troops, there will be no fighting in Palestine."

To the early development of Canadian unity no man contributed more than Sir Alexander Tilloch Galt. One of the chief sponsors of the British North America Act, it was Galt who personally drafted the recommendations which led to Confederation. As Minister of Finance, Canadian High Commissioner, diplomat and statesman, Galt played a distinguished part in Canada's growth.

In 1869 GALT said:
"Look Forward...as a Nation"

In 1622 CALVERT said:
"Preserve Unity...and Good Government"

OVER THREE CENTURIES ago Calvert wrote of the New World: "It shall prove to be the source of riches...here are many things of much good."

Founder of historic colonies in the early 1600's and Secretary of State to King James I, Calvert may well have foretold Canada's great future when he said: "Fair dealings lead to union...they would doubtless be a renowned nation."

Man of Vision of the 17th century and pioneer of unity, Calvert's ideals have inspired men of vision through the generations since Calvert's time 300 years ago.

The full measure of our stature as a nation depends upon unity of purpose. There is only one Canada for clear-headed Canadians.
